PREFACE

THE contents of this volume represent a part of the large collection of manuscripts bequeathed to the University of Edinburgh by the late David Laing, LL.D., who died in October 1878. As is well known, he also left a marvellous collection of rare books. These were sold at Sotheby's sale-rooms in 1879, and realised a large sum. But his MSS., including the charters noted in this work, were presented by him to the University of Edinburgh, with this condition as regards the charters, that they should be catalogued so as to be accessible to any who wished to consult them. This work was intrusted to the present Editor; but, under examination, the interest of the subject increased so greatly that from a simple catalogue the present comparatively full calendar has emerged. When in 1896 the University authorities resolved to print and publish the Calendar, the whole was again revised and largely added to, and it is hoped that it will now form a useful help to the further elucidation of Scottish history and genealogy, as it has already proved of much assistance to inquirers into those subjects.

The Editor regrets the delay which has occurred since the Prospectus to Subscribers was issued. He then hoped to be able to devote his whole time to complete the work, but his appointment to his present post brought other duties which so far hindered his labours on the Calendar. The preparation and completion of the copious Indices have also occupied more time than was anticipated. But this time has not been altogether lost, as every effort has been made to secure accuracy, and at page 755 will be found corrections of such mistakes and omissions as have been detected.

In the course of his labours the Editor has received much encouragement from persons interested in the subject, and to these he expresses hearty thanks. But his gratitude is more especially due to the members of the Library Committee of the University, who have been unfailing in their kindness towards him, and of these he would specially name Dr. James Burgess, C.I.E., for active practical assistance, and Mr. Balfour Paul, Lyon King-at-Arms, who has very kindly read the sheets while passing through the press, and has aided in correcting the heraldic references. The Editor is also indebted to Mr. Webster, Librarian of the University, for constant encouragement and cordial furtherance of the work while in progress at the University; to Mr. J. Maitland Thomson, M.A., advocate, Curator of the Historical Department, for many kind and helpful suggestions and other facilities: while the labour on the Index has been much lightened by the able assistance and co-operation of Mr. Henry Paton, M.A., and his son.

Besides the usual Indices of Persons and Places, which are very full, the lists of notaries-public and of seals will be found useful.

In regard to the Instruments of Sasine, which are numerous, the dates of registration after such writs began to be recorded are almost invariably given. When a sasine is recorded in the General Register, it is simply so stated: and when a sasine is said to be recorded at a particular place, as at Kirkwall, Duns, etc., it may be looked for in the particular register for the district.

The writs in the collection are arranged chronologically, but reference to them will be facilitated by noting the Box in which they are and their relative number, which will be found at the end of each entry in the Calendar.

JOHN ANDERSON.

And Chamberlain and his wife quitclaim to Siuuarde the pool or stank ('stagnum') called the pool of Kellin, with all the grazing (herbagio) of that pool, so that an inundation of the water of that pool shall not hurt the said Sir Richard Siuuarde's arable land; it being understood that Chamberlain and his wife have free ish and entry for their animals to the said pasture. mission with the teind sheaves of the parish church of Rinde, belonging, as is asserted, to Patrick, bishop of St. Andrews—namely, because these teind sheaves with which the appellant, by special mandate from the king, had intromitted did not belong to said bishop, as they had been bought and sold by secular men as secular goods; for which reason no temporal action may lie against the appellant before a spiritual judge, and the appellant is not bound to answer for his intromissions before the official, but before a secular judge; yet these reasons, stated in time and place fitting, the official did not admit, but imposed silence on the appellant, which he had no right to do: Therefore the appellant formally appeals from the official and from his interlocutor, and his other sentences of excommunication and interdict, to Pope Paul [the Second] and the Holy See, etc., submitting himself and his goods, movable and immovable, to the Pope's protection, etc. Done in Southgate of the city of St. Andrews, before the house of Alexander Smale, citizen there, on 25th February 1468-9, in presence of Mr. Hugh Douglas, canon of the Cathedrals of Glasgow, Aberdeen, and Dunblane, Mr. James Dundas, Sir Andrew Smale, chaplain, and David Urquhart, layman; Robert Rede, M.A., clerk of St. Andrews diocese, by imperial authority notary public. The archbishop directs, and by desire of MR. WALTER DRUMMOND, rector of the said parish church of Forteuioth, erects a canonry in said collegiate church, and as a prebend the rectory of Forteuioth, appointing Mr. Walter to the canonry and prebend, and in the church of Forteuioth a perpetual vicarage full and complete, to be conferred on a fit person who shall have the cure of souls in the parish, the teind sheaves to belong to the canonry and prebend [to Mr. Walter and his successors], and the remaining fruits of the parish, the wool, flax, lambs, calves, cheese, oblations, mortuaries, funeral rites, and other pertinents, with the croft and manse, to belong to the vicar and successors in the vicarage. bendary's part of the fruits. The archbishop further declares that, with consent of his chapter, and of Mr. Walter Drummond, rector, and Sir Andrew Thomson, vicar pensioner, he has bestowed the perpetual vicarage of Forteuioth on WILLIAM IRLAND, presbyter of Dunkeld diocese, and by the episcopal ring has invested him in the whole care and administration of said vicarage, reserving a pension to be paid the said Sir Andrew for life. 410. 19th June 1536.] Notarial Instrument [old copy, but not contemporary], narrating that in presence of the notary and witnesses, and at the express command of Sir Alexander [Stewart],[1] bishop of Moray, and commendator of the monasteries of Scone and Inchaffray ('Insule Missarum'), John Clerk, prior of the monastery of Scone, vicar of Regortown, and Edward Abircrombie, 'granatarius' of said abbacy, vicar of Logyrait, passed to the town and lands of Arnbothy, lying in the lordship of the abbey of Scone and sheriffdom of Perth, and there assigned and cognosced ALEXANDER LYNDSAY, burgess of Perth, undoubted farmer of the lands, to the right marches of the said lands of Arnbothy, according to the ancient perambulations, to be manured, ploughed, and occupied, and to be preserved unharmed from the invasion of neighbours and molestation and destruction during the terms and whole space of his tack, which limits and divisions, 'per cruces lapideas erectas et rupes crucibus insculptas, fontium capita et torrentium preterfluxiones, in vulgari, . . . dilucidantur';—'In the first at the south fra Abbat Alexanderis croce west to the heid of the cheapelburne well and croce thairat, and syne lineallie north our the Southry, croce be croce, to the Baky well and croce thairat; fra the Baky well north, croce be croce and stane be steane, doune to the great steane beneath the well callit the nynmaidin well, with ane great croce on the heid of the said steane; fra the said croce steane lineallie east, steane be steane, to the schear stane; fra the scheirsteane lineallie eist, steane be steane, over to the steane at the neither west nuke of Burnis fauld, and syne eist the dyke fra the eist neither nuke of Burnisfauld eistward, steane be steane, to the kyd well and steane; fra the kydwell and steane lineallie eist, steane be steane, to the Blakwell with the craig above the west end of the Blak hill; fra the Blakwell and craig lynallie north and doune over the Blak hil bewest the cairne to Schanksfuird; fra Schanksfuird wpwart againe south ay as the clughe burne gais wpon the steid steane to the heid of the said burne, and syne west the common mercat geat on the south syde of the lach to the cairnes and steanes besouth the Scheining hill; fra the cairnes and steanes besouth the Scheining hill linallie south our as the muire and the eist end of the rachtis de Perth [sic] wp and south, steane be steane, to the merch steane with ane croce on the heid theiron on the west syde of the Turfhill; fra the said merch-steane with the croce liniallie south and downe on the east syde of the glak and eist syde of the strype and lach, as the steanes gais at the craigis, be the corneland, to the south-west end of the rigendis of the Turfhill, and [syne

The sense of the rest of the writ is rendered imperfect by a mutilation, but it would appear that when the lands, as bounded, were handed over to Lindsay with injunctions to conserve them inviolate, he complained of a neighbour, John Robi[son ?], who was present and was accused by the prior and 'granatarius' of the injuries done. He replied that he had built a sheepfold, but that he had never before lifted or dug peats from the moss or marsh of the lands without special licence from the abbot and convent, nor would he do so, and he therefore craved permission to lead the peats lifted, promising that he would not do the like without special permission of the convent asked and obtained, the said Sirs John and Edward giving him licence for this occasion only of winning and leading peats. The parties then demanded instruments from the notary. These things were done according to the meiths and marches between 8 and 11 A.M., on 19th June 1536. Witnesses, John Lovell and James Quhytheid, chaplains, David Crombie in Bonhard, Patrick Blair, James Hunter, Thomas Galloway, William Quhytheid, Andrew Galloway, Robert Stevin, Robert Rollock, Archibald , Laurence Done, and Ronald Galloway; John Merchell, presbyter of St. Andrews diocese, by apostolic authority notary public. Indorsed, in hand-writing of copy, 'Extrak seaissing the Bishop off Dencaill and his sone off the lands of Arnbathe.' This memorandum seems to refer to James Paton, bishop of Dunkeld, and his son [cf. of date 28th April 1574 infra], and the present copy may have been made about that period. [3281, Box 87.

To effect this, and considering that the common moor lying near the convent of the nuns of St. Katherine of Senis [Sciennes] had been of little or no use hitherto, they had summoned by sound of bell those willing to buy, to appear before them in the lands at double rents and duties, besides the great sums paid to the commendator under certain hard conditions (digging for coals, as above, and a penalty for alienating the land); and considering these conditions to be made against good conscience and common reason and daily custom, and that many other tenants of the monastery about the same time obtained their 'steidingis' in feu-farm for a yearly augmentation of only 3s. 9d. for each oxgang, and for compositions much smaller than the said John's, therefore the granter, for relief of his conscience and for large sums paid by said John, has remitted to him and his heirs 15s. 5d. of the rent of each oxgang (leaving the sum of £5, 14s. 7d.) and ten pecks of wheat, and has annulled the said clauses. Moreover, he modifies the herezeld, to be paid at the death of the said John or his heirs, to five merks, because other tenants had their herezelds also modified, and he also modifies the carriages to the number of five and twelve pence for each five carriages.
